

Heron Santana Gordilho

Is a scholar of both animal and environmental law animal law, having published a number of books and articles on both subjects. He earned an SJD by the Federal University of Pernambuco and a post doc by Pace Law School. He is an environmental public prosecutor in Brazil and professor on environmental law at Federal University in State of Bahia and Catholic University. Visiting Professor at Pace University Law School, Fordham University School of Law, (New York-EUA), Williams College (Massachusetts-EUA), Facultad de Derecho de la Universidad Autónoma de Barcelona (Barcelona-Espanha) e Faculté François Rebelais (Tours-França).

He was founder and first president of Abolitionist Institute for Animals and he founder and editor of the Brazilian Animal Rights Review, the first legal journal about animal rights in Latin America. Additionally, he created the Habeas Corpus in behalf of chimpanzee theory.